

"Two Lives"

You texted me from your hotel room
Why did you have to leave so soon?
Would have done anything for you
With you feels like time just flies

On the outside I may look just fine
But what I need is just some time

Want our lives to be all sunlight
Always willing to compromise

Then how come one of us is always in daylight?
While the other is often in the dark

So why are we eight thousand miles apart?
Tired of being twelve hours behind

Do you feel alive? Where is the blue sky?
Please just tell me you will miss me sometimes

Hope one day to look into your eyes

My heart, my mind and soul are telling me Why Two Lives

Can only wish that our lives
Will align with sunlight

No control
Eating my soul

So unkind
Hope to change your mind

Awake all night
Wait for the morning sunlight

My heart, my mind and soul are telling me Why Two Lives

Can only wish that our lives
Will align with sunlight

No control
Eating my soul

So unkind
Hope to change your mind

Awake all night
Wait for the morning sunlight

Hoping the stars are in sight

On the outside I may look just fine
But what I need is just some time

Want our lives to be all sunlight
Always willing to compromise

Then how come one of us is always in daylight?

While the other is often in the dark

So why are we eight thousand miles apart?

Tired of being twelve hours behind

Do you feel alive? Where is the blue sky?

Please just tell me you will miss me sometimes

Hope one day to look into your eyes

My heart, my mind and soul are telling me Why Two Lives

Can only wish that our lives

Will align with sunlight

No control

Eating my soul

So unkind

Hope to change your mind

Awake all night

Wait for the morning sunlight

My heart, my mind and soul are telling me Why Two Lives

Can only wish that our lives

Will align with sunlight

No control

Eating my soul

So unkind

Hope to change your mind

Awake all night

Wait for the morning sunlight
